

Real (Tasty) Energy

We've long loved Kate's Real Food Tram Bars. Last autumn, Kate Schade, the company's founder and a local ripper, added the Tiki Bar to her lineup. Where Kate's Tram Bar is milk chocolatey, peanut buttery goodness meant to stick with you during a bell-to-bell ski day, the Tiki Bar is more tropical with mango, cashews, and coconut. But, with all sorts of proteins (5 grams), fats (19 grams), and carbs (32 grams), they've still got plenty of good energy. From $2.79; available at grocery and outdoor stores throughout the valley

Summer Shirts

SmartWool's new PhD Run Short Sleeve Crew (pictured) has raglan sleeves to remove underarm seams and eliminate chafing, and varied knit textures to help with ventilation and enhance its fit. Its Cortina Tech Tee (women's) and Teller Tech Tee (men's) are also designed to be chafe-free and have a hidden internal sunglass wipe, which, now that we've experienced it, we don't know how we ever lived without it. The 100 percent merino Short Sleeve V-neck is as simple as a T-shirt comes: simply the best, most comfortable T-shirt ever, that is. From $75; available at Wilson Backcountry Sports, Teton Mountaineering, and Skinny Skis

Buy This, Go Fish

It doesn't get much simpler: The Redington Topo Kit comes with a rod, reel, six flies, and all the pertinent accessories. All you need to add for a fly-fishing adventure is a license. And perhaps cold beer. The details? Inside the kit is a nice variety of mayflies, caddis bugs, and beetles local fish love, a tippet and spare tippet, and a nice little pair of metal nippers to prep the next fly. $199.95; available at High Country Outfitters; 50 E. Broadway

Pedal Pusher

Inspired by their (much more) expensive S-Works line, Specialized's Ember shoes (the men's model is the Road Comp) are part of the brand's Body Geometry line and feature the Boa® dial-adjustable metallic lacing system. We love how the shoe placed our feet in the correct position but it was the sole stiffness and the Boa® dial adjustability that really shined, making the shoe snug and responsive without pinching. $160; available at Hoback Sports; 520 W. Broadway

TravelStorysGPS

Because reading and driving go together like wolves and elk, TravelStorysGPS created a free(!) smartphone audio tour application of Jackson Hole's natural and cultural histories. There are also audio tours just for kids. The app works both in your home or hotel room and in your car, where GPS-triggered hot spots prompt engaging audio descriptions—think This American Life—of what you're about to drive by. Current routes include Highway 22 from Jackson to Wilson and over Teton Pass to the Idaho State Line, and also the Teton Park Road between Moose and Jackson Lake Lodge. Available in the iTunes app store; an Android version is coming soon; travelstorysgps.com

Technical Good Looks

Rumor is the ladies of Arc'teryx designed the new Codetta coat for themselves. Wanting to look good and stay dry during summer thunderstorms, they created a mid-thigh-length rain jacket with just as much style as substance. Waterproof and breathable with taped construction seals and watertight zippers, the lightweight Codetta has a sleek, urban cut that's much more Prada than parka. Still, a double kick pleat fits over a bike seat. Other Arc'teryx jackets have helmet-friendly hoods; Codetta's was designed to cover, but not crush, updos. And the coat comes in fun colors like desert lapis, harvest, and the minty green hosta, in addition to standard black or blue onyx. $375; available at Teton Village Sports; 3285 McCollister Dr.
